PREPARING YOUR PROJECT FOR STONE

Our stone is frequently used on exterior walls, but may also be utilized on interior walls or as a fireplace surround. Our stone should be installed by a professional. However, stone installation can be a do-it-yourself effort when following the correct installation methods and local building codes.

Depending on the type of exterior or interior surface, further surface preparation is required.

Stone is installed over masonry, exterior grade sheeting, or on the interior, over cement board. For waterproofing your project, a weather-resistant barrier is added to the external grade sheeting followed by a drainage mat/rainscreen. After, metal lath is nailed to the studs while a level and final scratch coat of mortar is applied and cured. The structural surface is now prepped and ready for stone. A mortar of type S is appropriate for attaching the stone to the scratch coat.

THIN BRICK MESH

OLD WORLD THIN BRICK MESH SPECIFICATIONS

Our old world brick is salvaged mesh backing panel makes installing thin brick faster and more efficient with pre-attached bricks to a fiberglass mesh.

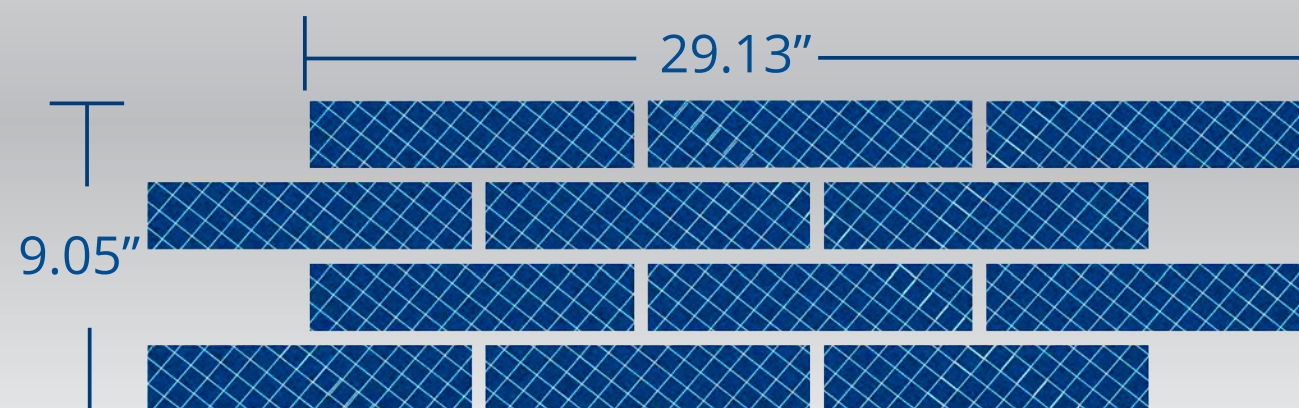

Material: Fiberglass mesh is woven from fiberglass strands, coated with a resin and then bonded to thin bricks which makes the mesh more resistant to moisture.

Spacing and Alignment: Our mesh is designed to keep the thin bricks evenly spaced for easier installation, ensuring a consistent and professional look. This helps also speed up the installation process.

Stability: Our mesh holds the bricks in place during transportation, handling, and installation, reducing breakage or misalignment.

Reinforcement: The mesh provides additional support, preventing the bricks from shifting after they are installed, especially on vertical surfaces.
